

Brand guidelines

Organization

- Mainline Studios — the studio / publisher. Use on copyright, “by Mainline Studios,” press, and corporate pages. See MAINLINE_STUDIOS.md for studio marks and palette.
- Pixel Place — the flagship product (games, avatars, community). In-app UI follows the Pixel Place system in COLORS.md.

Names

- Product: Pixel Place (two words; “Pixel” and “Place” may be stacked in logo lockups).
- Company: Mainline Studios.
- Avoid: “PixelPlace” as one word in prose unless matching a handle or URL slug.

Tagline / positioning

Common internal line: Play. Create. Share.

Short positioning (from product schema): web-based gaming platform and creative studio — play, customize avatars, build and publish games, community and Pixel Coins.

Voice

- Friendly, inclusive, safety-conscious (family-aware tone in policies).
- Energetic but not hypey; emphasize creativity and fair play.
- Very quirky — natural language — but no memes in official/legal copy unless brand-intentional.
- Use clear, short sentences for UI; longer explanations OK in help and legal.

Do

- Use the documented sky / cyan accent for primary actions and highlights.
- Keep dark UI backgrounds with subtle blue-violet atmosphere (see COLORS.md).
- Credit licensing where required (e.g. CC BY-NC-ND where applicable to site content).

Don't

- Imply real-world monetary value for in-game currency in ways that confuse parents or players.
- Stretch or distort the logo; don't add effects that break legibility at small sizes.

Legal / attribution (reference)

Site license line pattern (verify current year in production):

Pixel Place © [year] by Mainline Studios is licensed under CC BY-NC-ND 4.0
